

Could your pet benefit from Acupuncture ?

Acupuncture is an aspect of traditional Chinese veterinary medicine that uses small needles to rebalance a pet's vital energy or "Chi". The insertion of these needles into areas of the body where nerves and blood vessels converge helps to increase blood-flow and stimulate the body's own anti-inflammatory responses. Alongside traditional therapies, Acupuncture can help provide your pet with pain relief, increased mobility, and a reduction of inflammation related symptoms. We highly recommend this therapy if your pet has any functional concern.

This therapy can be used to treat chronic conditions like arthritis, IVDD, hip dysplasia, or acute injury. The body's response to acupuncture is cumulative so to give your pet maximum relief we recommended a series of treatments! Begin the process today by consulting with Dr. Janet Johnston, certified acupuncture professional.

Have Questions?

Ask our knowledgeable staff about how Acupuncture can benefit your pet !

What does Acupuncture cost?

This treatment is provided in our office by appointment or on a drop-off basis. Sessions typically take 20-30 minutes to perform and can be recommended 1-3 times per week. A consultation with Dr. Janet Johnston is required prior to starting an acupuncture regimen. Initially following treatment, pets can show some signs of soreness which typically resolves within 24-48 hours. The best results for acupuncture are cumulative and occur with repeat sessions.

Individual Sessions	Cost
New Patient Exam with 1st treatment (60 minutes)	$110
Existing Patient follow up visit with treatment	$75
Packages
4 Sessions ($65 per session)	$260
8 Sessions ($60 per session)	$480